STATUS OF THE PANAMA CANAL

IMPACTS AND IMPLICATIONS FOR THE SUPPLY CHAIN

 2 April, 2024 | 10:00 am – 12:00 noon (AST)

The Panama Canal holds significant importance for the Caribbean region due to its impact on trade, economic development, transportation infrastructure and trade route efficiency. In recent months, however, this waterway continues to be confronted by severe drought conditions that threaten its operations and the industries that depend on it.

It is in this light that the ACS and PMAC are hosting this regional conversation among transport experts, who will provide meaningful perspectives on how regional shippers and industries can approach these challenges. Join the discussion at 10:00 am – 12:00 noon (AST) on April 2nd, 2024 by registering below:
